Dear Sirs,

Between the Justice Department and Mr. Greenspan, those of us who are retirees are really having a difficult time.

Settle this suit, those states who are unwilling to settle are not helping me, the hunt and pick user, but those companies who have just not gotten the message. Use the KISS system, you know, keep it simple, stupid. There are plenty of systems for those companies that use this commercially, but for me I need the Windows and Word programs provided by Mircrosoft, so please, for my use and my pocket book. Put an end to this thing. I have felt from the beginning that the Justice Department was not interested in those who use the Mircrosoft systems, but in those local companies who had been setting on their hands too long and the market had passed them by.

Thank you.
